HARIO CO., LTD., headquartered in Chuo Ward, Tokyo, a Japanese heatproof glass manufacturer that produces and sells V60 Coffee Dripper, has released the first-ever assembly-type coffee dripper called SUIREN.

In this novel concept, HARIO removed the walls between the ribs, which are the main feature of the V60 Coffee Dripper, and created a dripper that consists only of petal-like ribs. These petal-like ribs are available in 6 different colours and sold separately, allowing customers to assemble them like blocks to create their unique colourful dripper.

Users can customise the colours to match national flags, their favourite themes, or sports teams, resulting in over a billion combinations. SUIREN has inherited the basic structure of the V60 Coffee Dripper and maintains the taste of coffee customers get with HARIO quality.

The name "SUIREN" comes from the product's resemblance to a water lily flower. Users can brew coffee as if arranging flowers in a vase, making it a delightful addition to their cafe or home decor. SUIREN will make them want to brew a cup of coffee as soon as they get their hands on it.
