

Saudi's Tanmiah Food partners with China's Chengdu Design & Research Institute

10 January 2025 | News

This collaboration is considered an essential part of Tanmiah's long-term strategy to boost food security

This collaboration is considered an essential part of Tanmiah's long-term strategy to boost food security

Tanmiah Food Company, a market-leading provider of fresh and processed poultry and other meat products, announced that it has formed a strategic partnership with Chengdu Design & Research Institute (CDI), a Chinese contractor firm with operations in both China as well as in Saudi Arabia, providing full Engineering, Procurement and Construction (EPC) solutions, to construct 100 poultry broiler houses across the Kingdom. The signing event was recently held at Tanmiah's head office.

This collaboration is considered an essential part of Tanmiah's long-term strategy to boost food security and contribute to self-sufficiency while advancing Saudi Arabia's Vision 2030 goals. The contract, signed by Tanmiah's subsidiary, Agricultural Development Company (ADC), includes the construction work for the preparation of infrastructure and equipment for 100 state-of-the-art poultry broiler houses. These modern facilities will be equipped with automation and Industry 4.0 technologies, ensuring the highest standards of sustainability, operational efficiency, and animal welfare.

Work on the project is scheduled to begin in January 2025, with an estimated completion date of December 2026. This development will not only increase Tanmiah's production capacity but also contribute to the Kingdom's strategic objectives of self-sufficiency in poultry production, reducing reliance on food imports and strengthening the domestic economy.