

World Whiskey Society launches Doc Holliday 10-year-old special edition

28 February 2025 | News

Aged for a decade, this bourbon exemplifies the craftsmanship of WWS

Aged for a decade, this bourbon exemplifies the craftsmanship of WWS

World Whiskey Society (WWS), renowned for its exceptional portfolio of ultra-premium whiskeys, announced the launch of its latest release: the Limited Edition Doc Holliday 10-Year-Old Special Edition Collector's Case Straight Bourbon Whiskey. This exclusive expression marks a significant milestone in the Doc Holliday portfolio, combining craftsmanship with a striking presentation that pays tribute to the legend of the Wild West.

Encased in an innovative, never-before-seen decanter in a collector's case, this bourbon is more than a spirit. The eye-catching set features a dual-purpose 2-in-1 cork gun stopper and display revolver, seamlessly blending whiskey refinement with historical allure. This unique design transforms the whiskey into a must-have collectable for both whiskey connoisseurs and Wild West enthusiasts alike.

Aged for a decade, this bourbon exemplifies the craftsmanship of WWS. The nose offers an inviting aroma of sweet caramel and buttered cornbread, enriched with notes of orange citrus, chocolate malt, and a wave of spice. On the palette, rye spice emerges upfront, followed by layers of caramel and chocolate sweetness, with fruit flavours throughout. The finish is long and spice-filled, where tobacco, chocolate, and a hint of chilli pepper blend with a sweet undertone.

"We are excited to introduce this special collector's case," said Alex Kogan, CEO of World Whiskey Society. "This bourbon, paired with the innovative stopper and display revolver, creates a unique whiskey experience, making it a rare offering that collectors will treasure for years to come."