Premium alternative milk brand expands lineup with two new clean, Certified Organic offerings

Leading plant-based milk brand, MALK Organics, announced the launch of two new 100 per cent clean-label SKUs - Unsweetened Organic Coconut and Unsweetened Organic Soy. Both new products remain true to MALK's mission to offer the cleanest plant-based milk options on the market with no gums, oils, or artificial additives.

Unsweetened Coconut MALK is made with just four organic ingredients: filtered water, organic milk, evaporated coconut water, and Himalayan pink salt. A refreshing take on a classic plant-based favorite, the natural richness of coconut makes this new SKU great on its own and also brings a velvety texture and subtle sweetness to drinks, smoothies, and cooked dishes.

Unsweetened Soy MALK is made with just three organic ingredients: filtered water, soybeans, and organic Himalayan pink salt. With 6g of plant-powered protein in every serving, this new SKU delivers both flavour and nutrition. This creamy, delicious and clean soy milk is perfect for coffee, smoothies, and recipes.

"We're thrilled to introduce Organic Coconut and Organic Soy to our growing portfolio of clean, plant-based milks," said MALK's CEO, Jason Bronstad. "At MALK, we remain committed to delivering the cleanest, highest-quality plant-based beverages made with simple, organic ingredients. As demand for transparent, flavourful options continues to rise, we're confident that our organic, dairy-free favourites will further solidify MALK as the trusted brand in the category."

Organic Coconut MALK will be rolling out in Whole Foods and Sprouts and Organic Soy MALK will be rolling out exclusively in Whole Foods this March. Both new products, in addition to all of MALK's existing organic products, will be available for sampling at Expo West.
