Suntory Oceania has unveiled a new $13 million inbound warehouse at its Auckland manufacturing site in Wiri, marking another milestone in the company's long-term investment strategy across Australia and New Zealand.

The new facility significantly expands on-site storage capacity, enabling safer and more efficient operations as Suntory Oceania continues to strengthen its position as a multi-beverage business in the region.

The warehouse is also equipped with a new electronic warehouse management system designed to enhance inventory visibility and improve supply chain resilience.

Sustainability was a key focus throughout the project. The company reused crushed concrete from the former warehouse slab during construction and designed the building to support future on-site solar generation, aligning with Suntory Oceania's "Growing for Good" sustainability commitment.

According to the company, the investment reflects its continued focus on building a modern, resilient and sustainable manufacturing network across Oceania.
