

Tyson Foods Names Wes Morris Chief Operating Officer

09 June 2026 | News

Morris brings more than 20 years of experience with Tyson Foods, including prior leadership roles as president of the Prepared Foods and Poultry businesses

Morris brings more than 20 years of experience with Tyson Foods, including prior leadership roles as president of the Prepared Foods and Poultry businesses

Tyson Foods announced the appointment of Wes Morris as Chief Operating Officer (COO). As COO, Morris will oversee the company's business segments, including Chicken, Beef, Pork, Prepared Foods and International.

Morris brings more than 20 years of experience with Tyson Foods, including prior leadership roles as president of the Prepared Foods and Poultry businesses. His appointment reinforces the company's commitment to operational excellence.

"Wes Morris has a proven track record of executing against operational priorities across key segments of our business," said Jeff Schomburger, incoming President and Chief Executive Officer of Tyson Foods. "His deep understanding of our operations will be critical as we continue to strengthen performance across the enterprise. We remain focused on executing our strategy with discipline and have the right resources and people to win."

"I'm excited to return at this pivotal moment," said Morris. "We have a strong foundation in place, and I'm committed to operational discipline as the company continues to advance its strategic priorities and execute its growth plan."

Morris begins his role on June 15. Devin Cole will be retiring from Tyson Foods. The company thanks him for his many contributions.