

Vitasoy invests $154M for new production site in China

31 October 2018 | News

Vitasoy has announced that it will invest HKD1.21 billion ($154 million) to build a new production facility in Dongguan, China.

The 100,000 square metre production facility will be Vitasoy's largest production facility in mainland China.

Vitasoy has announced that it will invest HKD1.21 billion ($154 million) to build a new production facility in Dongguan, China.

The 100,000 square metre production facility will be Vitasoy's largest production facility in mainland China, and the facility should be operational by 2021.

Vitasoy claims that the new facility will significantly expand the production capacity of its plant-based food and beverage products, which are available in 40 markets worldwide.